THE German census of 1887 shows a large in crease in the number of physicians over the census of ten years previous. The increase has been at the rate of 15:4 per cent, while the population at the same time has increased only 9.7 per cent. Of the twenty-one large cities, of more than 100,000 inhabitants each, Munich and Frankfort-on-Main had a physician to every 1000; Leipsic, Breslau. ONE of the probationary Chinese detectives distinguished himself the other day in a way which, if it does not lead to his promotion, will probably cause him to be sent to a place higher than the Police Station, He is an educated Chinaman belonging to Vancouver. He is alleged to have gone into a Club in Cochrane-Street on the 19th inst. and asked for $10. The manager told him to close the door from the other side. upon which he made a poke at that individual with his umbrells, lugged out a truncheon, and said, in effect, that he was Hawkshaw, the detective. He also mentioned that he was capable of closing that Club in about forty-eight hours, and so on. The club people complained to the Police, and Inspector Hennessy put the detective under arrest. Mr. Webber defended the case this morning, and the prisoner-whose story was that he was folkely accused, having only gone into the Club after a thief-was committed for trial, bail of $100 being

THE New York World recently obtained from the Treasurer of each State the value of the property assessed for taxation. The census office in 1886 made a report of an inquiry into the proportions existing in each State between the taxed property and the actual wealth, which ranged between 25 percent in Illinois and 68 in Wyoming. The World's report shows an increase in taxable property of $6,963,000,000, and an increase in actual wealth of $18,662,000,000, since 1880. The total wealth is $61,459,000,000, exclusive of public property, and of $3,003,000,000 worth of property invested and owned abroad. The wealth of the United States now exceeds the total wealth of the whole world at any time previous to the middle of the eighteenth century. and the amount invested abroad is alone equal to the national wealth of Portugal and Denmark. There are only five nations whose total wealth is equal to the mere increase of the United States in the past nine years, Thus the Scientific American :- Some paper has started the silly question: "Do inventions decrease wages ?." Certainly they do not. On the contrary, inventions increase wages, shorten the work day, and decrease prices. In fact, inventions constitute the only possible way by which labor can be emancipated from drudgery, long hours and poor pay. Inventions are increasing every year, and wages are constantly advancing in all countries where they are utilized. Take calicoas an example: There are persons now living who can remember when calico sold at 25 cents a yard. It now sells at 8 cents. This great reduction in price was effected by inventions. In the meantime, wager have in no case fallen, but have advanced very greatly. A day's wages will now buy as much calico as a week's wages would fifty years ago. Calico is selected as an example, but the same facts are true as regards other manufactures. Any one, no matter whether a laborer, a loafer, or a capitalist. who talks against invention talks against one of the very greatest material blessings that has been that any person can be found who is so ignorant or so rash as to condemn them.

Now, what did different individuals or on their idiosyncrasies, with all the Makololo tribes on both sides of the we may say in general that meats are more easily digestible the less strong their cohesion and the less their hardness. We might thus establish between them the following order, beginning with the ligthest; Sea and river fish, fowl, game, crustaceans, lamb, veal, beef, mutton, wild boar and pork. In these categories are generally considered heavy and hard to digest, salmon, cels, geese, ducks and some other water birds, as well as stronglysmoked and salted meat. On the time required for the digestion of different kinds of food:-

Roasted pork | Boiled milk ........2.00 Salt beef (boiled) ... 4.15 | Boiled codfish ..... 2.00 Veal (boiled) .....4.00 Venison steak ...... 1.35 Boiled hens ......4.00 Trout (broiled) ......4.00 Roasted beel .....3.00 Eggs (hard boiled) Raw oysters ..... 2.45 3.30 to 5.30

Roasted turkey ...2.30 Eggs (soft boiled ... 5.00 The above is taken from Beaumont's "Experiments on Digestion." Dalton comments on these observations as follows: "These results would not always be precisely the same for different persons, since there are variations in this respect according to age and temperament. Thus, in most instances, mutton would probably be equally digestible with beef, or perhaps more so; and milk, which in some persons is easily digested, in others is disposed of with considerable difficulty. But, as a general rule, the comparative digestibility of different substances is no doubt correctly expressed by the above list."

THE following libel on our General is going the rounds of the Australian Press. It sounds characteristic, certainly. It appears that while in Christchurch the Major-General had an orderly told off to attend upon him in his goingsout and comings-in. The said orderly was a yeomanry cavalry man of fine physique, and altogether a good sample of New Zealand young manhood. It was the last day of the Major-General's stoy there, and at the close of it, says I of champages. Varyers

THE TROUBLE WITH PORTUGAL.

The Pall Mall Gazette thus explains all this bother between the English and Portuguese Governments, respecting African possessions :-Mr. H. H. Johnston, who is now her Majesty's Mr. Graham's social status by right of birth Consul in those parts, went to Lisbon to make a pacific arrangement with the Portuguese. He succeeded in drawing up a provisional scheme to which the Portuguese assented, and which Lord Salisbury would have ratified but for the action of the Scotch missionary societies. They considered that Mr Johnston had made too great concessions to the Portuguese, and that the proposed arrangement endangered the safety, and even the existence of their mission stations on the lake. They made such vigorous representations of Lord Salisbury that the Prime Minister collapsed, threw over Mr. Johnston's arrangement, and thus the attempt to settle things came to an untimely end. Then he sent out Mr. Johnston as British representative to Portuguese East Africa with the most extended powers. Mr. Johnston was instructed to make friendly alliances with the native tribes, and practically to do what seemed prudent and right in the way of consolidating British influence in the region which leads up mission station as its capital. He left this

Lake Nyassa, and has the Scotch country some months ago with hopes of being able to co-operate in establishing the supremacy of England right up to the great Lake Tanganyika, and as soon as he got vouchsafed to the world, and it is astounding to the Zambesi he set about fulfilling his mission. On his way up the Shire River he overtook Major Serpa Pinto, the Portu- Bully, the storekeeper, helped him. guese explorer, who was leading a force: river. They signed treaties with him, by which they entered into friendly alliance with this country, and the British flag was hoisted at intervals all the way, up the Shire to Lake Nyassa. Major Se pa Pinto coming up behind Mr. Johnston discovered that he had been forestalled. He returned to Mozambique for reinforcements and then swooped down upon the unfortunate natives with whom Inhuston had concluded treaties. When-Makololo showed the British flag and declared that they were the friends of England, they were attacked by Serpa Pinto and hundreds of them were moved down with Gatling guns, whilst two British flags were ignominiously captured. The lieving themselves to be abandoned by England. Major Serpa Pinto, flushed with success. has determined to conquer the country in similar fashion up to Nyassa. Now we have only, one word to say to Lord Salisbury, and that is that he nction to arrest the progress of Major Serpa

CUNNINGHAME GRAHAM.

The most prominent, and, at the same time. the most interesting figure in the new London Democratic Club, is undoubtedly that of the President, Robert Cunninghame Graham, M. He occupies a somewhat anomalous position in the van of the English Radical party; he is him in the lurch. He got each of his debtors to at once loved and hated, respected scorned, claimed as a brother by the miners of Scotland and working men of England, I run in the doctor and he gets one, two, or three and repudiated by his own class. Mr. Graham, guiness next day, according to whether the percomes of one of the oldest families of Scotland and is the owner of a beautiful property, Gartmore, in Stirlingshire, now heavily encumbered, with mortgages. Through his mother, a very clever old lady, he is related to Lord Elphinstone. blood in his veins. In spite of all these family impediments he has flong himself into the political areas in the interests of the people. Full of enthusiasm and energy, profoundly touched by the wrongs of humanity, and utterly regardless of all personal considerations. Cunninghame Graham possesses all the qualities. of a popular leader, save one-that of mental, ballast. As a result he will probably never be more than an irresponsible factor, a sort; o political franc-tireur. But in time of war, the franc-fireus a have a very definite use, and the Radical working men know well how much their cause is advanced by the Cunninghame Grahams of this life who are ever ready to dash into the fray at a moment's notice de de de de de de

In person Mr. Graham is distinctly good looking. Tall and slight, with thin well-cut features and pointed beard and brilliant eyes, he bears a strong resemblance both in looks and bearing to the noble Spaniards perpetuated by the brush of "Richard Moole, Ormsby murderer," "Mary Veleasques, in spite of the fact that his erect wavy hair is light-brown in hue instead of black. His Spanish blood asserts itself in spite of the Benjamin Rudge, Carlisle murderer;" "Elizabeth Scotchness of his name, and there is something Berry, Oldham polsoner," and so on through distinctly un-English about his almost febrilet the whole ghastly list. "Does any prejudice energy and his utter disregard of social cos- sgainst your business affect many of your friends Fontionalities of the good dist anodanoil

One of the points about Mr. Graham which captivate the working classes is his immense physical strength; for in spite of a superficially delicate physique his muscles are of iron. This is partly the result of siveral years' cattle-ranching in Mexico before he went into Parliament in 1886. When, two years ago, he half-expected to be killed in Trafelgar Square, the only instructions he gave were that his favourite Mexican mustang should be led to his grave in the funeral

To study Graham to advantage he should be seen, not arguing excitedly with a jeering House of Commons, but up in Scotland amidst his own mining constituents of North-East Lanarkshire, There, ever since he went to jail for the sake of popular liberties, he is regarded as a popular hero. Their affection for him is very real, and extends even among the miners of other counties, Only this spring, having been invited to address a meeting at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and arriving at half-past two in the morning Mr. Graham found the whole Central Station crowded with Northumberland "geordies" who had given up their night's rest in order to do him honour, and who welcomed him with the deafening cheer that north-country throats know so well how to

Besides a favourite horse, Cunninghame Graham brought home with him from Mexico a very charming wife, the daughter of Senor Francisco Jose de Labalmondiere, Chili. Mrs. Graham is slight, and dark, and foreign-looking, not precisely pretty, but tres sympathique. Like her husband, she is an enthusiastic Socialis, but unlike him she is also a devout Catholic and in the intervals of political work she is devoting herself to writing a life of St. Theresa. She is a plucky little woman, and in spite of much bad health takes an active share in all her husband's:enterprises.

Socially of course the Cunninghame Grahams have had to suffer a great deal for their political faith, Ever since November 13, 1887, when Graham: and John Burns led the people to Trafalgar-square, polite society has shown them the cold shoulder, and up at Garimore they are strictly boycotted by their country neighbours. Perhaps the very unimpeachable excellence of makes it all the easier for him to ignore the conventional narrow-mindedness of some people in society. Any way he and his wife make their own friends in what they hold to be more congenial circles, and are both fir too busy not to rejoice in the escape from the boredom of society duties.

GIVE THE POOR FELLOW A START.

Wanted, a duly-qualified medical man-badly wanted when people know there is none nearer than Bogaboo, fifty miles off; but not so much wanted when he is visibly extant. At any rate, we needed a doctor-we, that is the neighbouring station-hands, had built a hospital, and the same was subsidised pound for pound by Sir Henpeck Lnrk's Government. So we advertised for a medico and guaranteed a practice of £300 a year. We, that is the guaranters, felt just a bit uneasy when three months had elapsed, bringing in one case of what the patient called Barcoo rot. He positively refused to pay more than half-a-crown. medicine and bottle included, so we, the responsible people, met and consulted over some socalled whisky. Something must be done, and we were valiant in our cups and swore to give the doctor a start. I'll not tell my part in the proceedings, but I'll show how the P.M. and

An old fellow who had long been ailing dropped dead at Sandy 'M'Scot's but door, 20 miles from thing absolute in those qualities which depend | wards Lake Nyassa. Mr. Johnston passed him | the town. Sandy tooled him in his buggy and the latter do? Give a burial-order? Not such a fool. An inquest was necessary; had not the man died sudden'y? So he was autopsied, and this meant fro for the medico besides free liquor from the publican, who did a good, business as long as the corpse was scattered about his wash-house. The bits had been cemented and boxed and labelled, when in drives Mother Whackem, whose Chlnese overseer had died not quite so suddenly, but the P.M. ordered the pill-box off at once to cut the Chinkie to bits for another tenner and mileage. On the way the doctor met a squatter who had been gazing on the oil of fusel, and he said: "Doc, ole fler, I'll give you a lift! My men are all blacklegs, and I'll make them sign Makololo, being thoroughly subdued by these; to pay you say half-a-crown apiece during means have accorded Portuguese domination, be- shearing, and have a nip to bind the bargain." When shearing arrived the mea growled, but signed, and it was a big shed-close on 200 men employed. Then the doctor, swore one morning, when he was on a visit, that two of the jackeroos had consulted him must not hesitate one moment in taking decisive the night, before, and the aquatter backed him up and he sent out various nasty drugs and a bill for £5 each, although the patients, were in perfect health and remembered no consultation except as to whether the tipple should be hot or cold. The bottles are kept to this day untouched and if the doctor dines at the bachelors! barracks they are put on the table and handed round along with the rum and so on.

But perhaps the cutest man is the storekeeper. Lots of the cockies owed him money, and he pretended not that he doubted their willingness to pay, but that he feared they might die and leave and go to the doctor and get stethoscoped-price two guineas. ## THE HANGMAN INTERVIEWED.

An enterprising American reporter has interviewed, at his home at Bradford, Berry, the hangman. Mr. Berry's parlour, into which the reporter was shown, was furnished simply and unostentatiously, the pictures on the wall entirely harmonising with their environment. The most conspicuous of these was a large frame containing twenty-two small photographs arranged about a large portrait of Mr. Berry himself. These photographs were all of gentlemen and ladies whom Mr. Berry had worked off, each one being labelled with the name and crime of the original, as "Israel Lipski, Whitechapel murderer." Ann Bullard, Ashlord rolsoner ;" " Thomas Leatherbarrow, Manchester, two wives;" "Anthony inpleasantly I was asked, after Mr. Berry had ordered a brandy and soda. "Well, I should langed until I was on the boat a-steamin' away proudly. "It killed my father and my mother I asked. "I'll tell you," said Mr. Berry in a burst and one of my brothers. You see when Marwood of confidence. "I shaves off my whiskers and I dies, and the appointment is vacant, I makes puts on women's clothes. That's the way I application to the 'Ome S cretary at the same got into Dublin jail, with my ropes and straps time with Bartholomew Binns. Father was under my clothes, and that's the way I've done a carpet spinner in Heckmondyke, about six miles off here. 'E owned a big mill steps to bid the reporter farewell, and explained and employed scores of men until 'e lost that he (Berry) owned the house he lived in and 'is property through 'is debtors being bank-tupt. 'E 'ad twenty-one children and 'e gave every one of us a boardink school education, except three. They was," said Mr. Berry. counting on his fingers, "our Herbert and our Sarah and our-no it was only two. We all had a boardink school education but two. My people was the most respectable people in Yorkshire, and when they eard as I 'ad made application to be 'angman they sent word to the Ome Horfice that I was a lunatic and subject to fits, and they all begs me not to bring disgrace upon the family. Well, what was I to do? I'd been in the coal trade, and I'd 'ad to go in bankrupt, and my brothers never offered to 'elp me then. After that I was in the butter trade, and 'ed to pay my profits over to the other creditors, and finally ad to quit that business and go to work a' making bootlegs in a shoe shop. None o' my respectable brothers, as might afford it, being in a good way o' business, ever says to me: James, 'ere's a 'undred pounds to gi' you a new start.' I says:—'lt's a 'onest business and it's a paying business-ten pun and travelling expenses for each person what I langs, and fi pun in case of a reprieve—and I II follow it. I goes to my solicitor and tells 'im 'ow my sister ad sent word to the 'Ome Secretary as I was subject to fits-which I never 'ad a fit in my life-and he tells me to get the affidavit of my family doctor as I was in perfect 'ealth, which ! did, and I gets the appointment. That night it wis all in the papers in Bradford 'a Yorkshire man appointed public 'angman,' and what does one of our neighbours do, as is in Bradford, but takes a paper out to Heckmondyke, and he finds my mother a standin' on the steps of our 'ouse. He shows her the paper and she looks at it and says "James the hangman" and falls backward in a swound." Mr. Berry paused at this juncture, not by reason of any sentimental weakness, but because he was thirsty, and took a long draught of his B. & S. "Well," he continued, 'they sends one for me the next day, and tells me the mother is dying and wants to see me. I goes to the house ri ht away, and finds her in bed. She sends the o hers out the room, a d then she puts her arm around my neck and cuddles me c'own to her. 'James,' she says , it's not true thou'st be langman? Thou'rt too "affectionate," she says, "Mother," I gays, "ji it'll save thy life I'll not be angman. 'Ay,' says she, 'it'll save my life.' . The hangthis instance of filial dev. tion, and he went on in a more bus que tone, as if deprecating the follies of earlier days. 'So I sends in my resignation, and Bartholomew Binns he gets the appointment, but it don't do no good, for the mother dies before she gets out of hed, and I was sorry enough, I can tell you, that I'd been such a fool. But, as I was swying, the hangman continued, 'it all come right in the end. 'About' two years after that I was sitting in the shop working on a bootleg when I hears the newshoys calling out, Sheeking Tragedy in a Prison, Bartholomew Binns Botches an Execution. I goes right out and buys a paper, and as soon as I read low that feller and bungled them murderers, and 'ad to 'ang 'em twice, I makes up my mind what to do. There was a man to be langed in Scatland the next week, and I knows they won't let Binns have another try at the business. I was a member of the Young Men's Christian Association, and I goes right over to that waiting soom and sends word to the Sheriff in Scotland, without even telling, my missus. I tell the Sheriff as ow I might have 'ad the appointment, before, and what was my qualifications. He sent me word back to get papers from the Chief Constable in Bradford that I am the right man, and not to breathe a word to nobody about it. Well, sir, I didn't even tell the missus that, and went to Scotland and did the job, me and the Chief Constable and Sherift in Scotland and the 'Ome Secretary was the only persons as knew I was 'angman until I come home after. It was reading that in the paper that was the beginning that my father and brother died of.' 'Come ' he said in the tone in which the Duchess invites the polished William to view the statue of Adonis, "come over to my 'ouse and I'll show you my 'anging apparatus." Soon we were in Mr. Berry's garret, the staircase to which opened into the middle of the room, and was not covered. On one side of this staircase was the bed in which the Misses Berry, junior, slept. On the other side were a couple of large wooden chests, beside which were placed two black travelling bags of ordinary appearance, one a third larger than the other. Children's toys were scattered about. In a beam near the stairway were arranged a number of hooks, Mr. Berry opened one of the wooden chests, which proved to be full of ropes, "I've 'anged many a man and woman with these," he said, fondling them affectionately, "I'll show you how I does it." The hangman took out a rope, fitted with a noose at the end. with a close-fitting leather washer above the knot. This rope he put over his head, and, placing it about his neck, drew the knot up snugly under this left ear; then he pulled the washer down close to the knot. 'My own invention,' he said, 'prevents the knot slipping." He now reached under the ropes in the chest and produced abroad leather belt, with subsidiary straps attached, which he buckled about his waist. Next he picked up the end of the rope, the noose of which was about his neck, and walking under a beam he tled the rope to a hook. This accomplished, he directed me how to pinion him at the clbows and wrists with the straps that were attached to the bolt, and soon the genial hangman was in a position where a kick over the stairway would have ended his earthly career in the same manner in which he had terminated so many others, I resisted the temptation to execute him, however, and unbuckled the straps again. Having relieved himself of the rope and put it back in. the chest with the belt, he opened the other chest and displayed what seemed to be an assortment of old clothes. It was not an ordinary assortment, however, since each article | ad been worn-by a condemned and executed murderer. "I've got a relic here," said Mr. Berry, proudly, " of every person I ever 'anged." He picked up a white handkerchief, upon which were embroidered in red the initials " M.L."," This 'ere 'andkerchief," he said, "belonged to Mary Leffley, who I anged fir the murder of her husband in Lincoln five years ago. She held it between her hands when: sie was dropped, and she was screaming all the time, She gave three yells after I pulled the lever while she was going down." I was said (1 remarked) that if Mrs. Maybrick had not been reprieved a mob would have been formed in Liverpool to prevent your hanging her," they'd never 'ave seen me," said Mr. Berry. " I'd he been in the fail and langed her before the mob knew I was about, and I'd been on the train and on my way back ome before they knew she was dead. Why, when I anged Poole in Dublin, who murdered informer Kenny-O'Donnell, who nurdered the other informer, Carey, having been

'anged in Newgate the day before-there was a great mob in Dublin to prevent my getting into SCOTT'S Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, for Rickets, Marasmus and all wasting disorders of children, is very remarkable in its results. The rapidity with which children gain flesh and strength upon it is very wonderful. Read the following:—"I have tried Scott's Emulsion in cases of wasting in young children, and I am of opinion that it is a valuable preparation for such cases. The children take it and ask for more, and the good effects are apparent.

I consider it far superior to ordinary Cod Liver
